The Ant Who Shared

Once there was a little ant named Ani. Ani worked hard all summer, carrying crumbs to her home under the old oak tree. One hot day, Ani found a big piece of bread. It was more bread than she could ever eat by herself!

Just then, Ani saw a beetle named Bo. Bo looked tired and hungry. He had lost his way home and had not eaten all day. Ani could have carried the whole piece of bread home for herself. Instead, she broke the bread in half and gave a piece to Bo.

"Thank you, Ani!" said Bo. "I was so hungry, and now I have food and a new friend." Ani smiled. She felt happier sharing the bread with Bo than she would have felt eating it all alone. From that day on, Ani and Bo shared their food together, and they were the best of friends.
